The boards of both Diebold Nixdorf, Incorporated and Diebold Nixdorf (U.K.) Ltd. have signed this statement. Our financial year ends on 31 December.
Company Policies
Diebold Nixdorf's Code of Business Ethics is the foundation for all of our policies and demonstrates our commitment to international labor and human rights standards.

Our Modern Slavery Policy specifically prohibits any form of human trafficking or forced labor, including withholding personal papers, deposits or compensation, excessive and involuntary overtime, and inappropriate loans or salary advances that tie workers to the workplace.

Other relevant policies include our:
- Third Party Policy
- Whistleblower and Non-Retaliation Policy
- Global Environmental Health and Safety Policy
- Global Sustainability Policy
- Global Diversity, Inclusion and Sensitivity Policy
- Equal Employment Opportunity Policy
- Conflict Mineral Policy

All of our officers, directors, employees and contingent workers are required to follow these policies. Our suppliers are required to adhere to our Code of Business Ethics and also our Supplier Code of Conduct, which prohibits any form of modern slavery.

All Diebold Nixdorf policies are signed off by senior management as part of our Global Policy Committee, and they are published on our policy portal, which is accessible by all Diebold Nixdorf people.

We review these policies regularly and are doing so again this year to make sure that they are in line with best practice and applicable laws and regulations.

Training
All our employees and contingent workers are required to complete an online Code of Business Ethics training on joining and annually thereafter. This includes signing and agreeing to comply with our Code of Business Ethics policy.

In 2021, we will include a module on modern slavery as part of our Code of Business Ethics training. We also intend to roll out more focused training on modern slavery to Diebold Nixdorf people in our procurement and supply chain so they know how to spot the signs of forced labor and know where to go to report concerns. Our aim is to share practical case studies and to demonstrate the steps they can take in their day-to-day jobs to prevent modern slavery in our business and supply chain.

Risk Assessment and Due Diligence
We want to make sure modern slavery is not taking place either in our own business or in our supply chain. We consider that the risk of modern slavery within our own operations is low as most of our people are highly skilled, and we have standardized global recruitment policies that we monitor carefully. We believe the risk of modern slavery in our supply chain is also low, but, obviously, the risks of modern slavery are higher within our supply chain because DN does not directly control those operations.

Diebold Nixdorf manufactures banking and retail hardware such as ATMs and retail sales hardware such as POS (Point of Sale) terminals at our own facilities in the U.S., Germany and Brazil and at our joint venture facilities in China. We use global supply chain resources to provide raw materials and components.

In our own facilities, we adhere to labor standards, and we work with our joint venture partners to ensure they do the same.
We have used several risk factors to assess the modern slavery risk for our direct suppliers who contract directly with us. These include the country that our supplier is based in; the type of product or service supplied; and the workers’ skill levels. This enables us to focus our due diligence activities on the areas of higher risk.

Supply Chain Due Diligence

Since 2017, all of our potential new suppliers have been set up and screened in our Compliance Desktop tool before being accepted as a supplier. As part of that screening process, the supplier must answer questions about the use of forced labor in its operations. If the supplier responds in a way that alerts us to a potential risk, then enhanced due diligence would take place.

In 2021, we are rolling out a new ERP system, and this will also contain questions about modern slavery that potential suppliers will have to respond to before they are onboarded.

We have an audit program for our key suppliers. Typically, these are carried out by Diebold Nixdorf people and are scheduled with the supplier. Due to the COVID pandemic, we were unable to carry out physical audits in 2020. We hope to resume physical audit activities at some point in 2021. This year, based on our risk assessment, where we consider a supplier to be in a higher risk category from a modern slavery perspective, we are building into our audits questions to ensure we understand the reality of working conditions. If we have concerns, then we will put in place measures and track progress against the plan. If a supplier does not make the necessary improvements, then we may cancel the contract.

For several years, we have carried out due diligence to ensure that conflict minerals are not used in our supply chain by seeking reassurances from those direct suppliers where we perceive there may be a greater risk. This process will continue in 2021.

Diebold Nixdorf People

Diebold Nixdorf has approximately 22,000 employees. In 2020, we set up a CARE Council. CARE stands for Considerate, Aware, Responsible and Empathetic. Our CARE Council works cross-functionally through employees around the globe to ensure that employees feel valued and protected within the workplace, know how they can contribute to promoting a good working environment, and are equitably recognized for their work.

In 2021, we have set up employee resource groups (ERGs) as part of the CARE Council. These are voluntary, self-sustaining, employee-led groups that bring members together based on shared characteristics, social identity or life experiences. They promote a diverse, inclusive workplace aligned with our Diversity and Inclusion (D&I) goals.

We have global recruitment processes to ensure that all hiring is in line with our commitment to labor and human rights standards. Our processes are set out in our Global Talent Acquisition Policy, and all hiring and terms and conditions offered to future employees are overseen by a Diebold Nixdorf talent acquisition partner. Likewise, all compensation and benefits offered to Diebold Nixdorf employees are overseen by our Compensation and Benefits professionals.

Governance

Our program to mitigate the risk of modern slavery occurring within our business or with our end-to-end supply chain is sponsored and fully supported by our Board of Directors.

In 2021, we have introduced a Global Sustainability Council made up of senior managers across functions, including our Environmental, Health & Safety team; Ethics & Compliance; Human Resources; Procurement; Manufacturing and R&D; Real Estate and Operations; Finance; Sales Operations; Internal Audit; and Legal. This council will monitor our progress to ensure we manage risk appropriately and ensure a zero tolerance for modern slavery and all associated risks and consequences throughout our business and downward supply chain. It will also develop KPIs to track progress.
Reporting

We have a whistleblowing hotline where Diebold Nixdorf people and third parties outside the company can raise any ethical concerns, including any concerns about modern slavery. If a concern is raised, it would be investigated fully by our dedicated ethics and compliance professionals and our regional Ethics Committees would oversee and ultimately decide on any action required.

We also have a non-retaliation policy so that when our people raise a concern in good faith, they know, even if the concern ends up not being well – founded, that they will not be retaliated against.

This is our statement for our financial year ending 31 December 2020. Diebold Nixdorf is committed to being a responsible business and to respecting human rights. We are against all forms of modern slavery everywhere.
